ALL YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT SHOOTING A VIDEO: INDEPENDENT WRITERS OF CHICAGO (IWOC)
HEAR HOW TO GET IN THE GAME

Aw, shoot! A client thought it would be a capital idea to have a quick video produced – and there you are, caught flat-footed on how to shoot one. Produce one. Load it up online for all the world to see. Well you're in luck, because at the next IWOC meeting on Tuesday, November 10th, video production expert Tom McCosky of McCosky Film and Video, will be here to impart all the nuts and bolts that go into producing a video, no matter the budget. So next time a client brings up the subject, you can confidently say, "Can do!"

McCosky has spent 14 years circling the globe with United Airlines, shooting their videos wherever UA flew and landed. Fast-forward to present day, and you'll find Tom and his video editor wife, Sue McCosky, operating McCosky Film and Video out of Mt. Prospect, serving clients that include Entertainment Tonight, reality TV shows, major corporations and pro sports networks. From the master, you'll learn about production options, budgeting, equipment choices, framing of shots, lighting, editing and publishing online.

Whether you're shooting-it-yourself with a smartphone or with a Digital SLR camera and hiring a crew, whether it's to promote a client or your own business, the information you glean will help you get in the game. And maybe even put you ahead of it. Lights...camera...get to the meeting!
